

DOW JONES NEWS/ RETRIEVAL

From the publishers of
The Wall Street
Journal

This country is in the midst of an electronic revolution. The electronic office is here today, and the electronic home isn't so far away. Both will revolutionize the way you receive information—perhaps even the way you do your shopping. And Dow Jones is in the forefront of that change.

Dow Jones brings you up-to-the-minute news and information from our central data bank over telephone or two-way cable lines. You can receive our news and information on a personal computer, simple terminal, communicating word processor, or teletypewriter in your home or office. It's a convenient, easy-to-use service that can help you or your company make money and manage your investments better. What's more, it provides just the information you want, at your fingertips.

News/Retrieval is brought to you by Dow Jones, the leader in business journalism, publishers of The Wall Street Journal, Barron's National Business and Financial Weekly, and the Dow Jones News Service or "Ticker."

A leader in communications, Dow Jones used its expertise to begin its interactive News/Retrieval service in 1974. The service has been growing rapidly ever since.

The leader in News/Retrieval, with tens of thousands of users already, Dow Jones has a pace setting stock quote service, exclusive news and information from The Wall Street Journal, Barron's and the Dow Jones News Service.

You can bring the future into your home or office, today. You'll join the information revolution that has begun to sweep across the country.
